He grabbed his hat and left the hall, followed by about half the delegates. Delegate Donnelly seized the gavel which Mr. Saunders had relinquished, and shouted: "All who have at heart the interests of the Progressive Democratic League will remain." About thirty delegates remained and howled at Mr. Saunders and his departing followers, calling them traitors and bolters. After the tumult had subsided Donnelly called the meeting to order again and presided. A motion to refer back the report of the Membership Committee was lost. Delegate Dobson stirred the wrath of Mr. Oliver again by declaring that the League had become an object of suspicion to labor organizations. Mr. Oliver started another anary discussion by moving that the office of president be declared variant. He said that the last facumbent had played the baby act by leaving the meeting, and had been found wanting in other respects. "Every man within the sound of my voice knows where the Klondike barrel is," he said.

At this point a florith-faced young man got up, mounced Oliver, and declared his intention of culting loose from the League. Oliver's motion that the office of president be declared vacant was again taken up and carried, after more wrangling. A motion to reconsider the vote was lost. A special inesting of the League was ordered for Sunday, August 28.

Insermuch as both Russia and Austria have been playing for centrol of Bulgaria, with the advantage thus far theiming to the former, the withdrawn of the Austrian Minister at Prince Ferdinand's Court may result in giving the latter Russian support in als present movement to obtain a crown and complete release from Ottoman suzeraints. A LIVELY DEBATE AS TO WHETHER THE THEAT-RICAL PROTECTIVE UNION WAS EXPELLED OR NOT.

The Central Labor Union had a lively meeting vesterday, dealing with the fight which has been waging for more than a year between the Manhattan Musical Union and the Theatrical Protective Union. The former secured an apparent victory over the latter a week age, but the dis-pute was reopened yesterday, the defeated theatrieal men having another hearing. The fight between the two organizations is the outgrowth of a quarrel between musicians about eight years ago. The Musical Protective Union, emposed of musicians, was then in existence, but its leaders were expelled from the Central Labor strike in a theatre where some of its members was then organized and joined the C. I., U. It has been trying to get its members into the theatre orchesiras of the city ever since, and, the leaders assert, has met with considerable success. It has had a fight on with the Fourteenth Street Theatre, however, for more than a year. The Theatrical Protective Union is composed of stage carpenters and other theatre attaches, and the Manhattan Musical Union declared that it did not help in the fight with the Fourteenth Street Theatre. The Manhattan Musical Union finally succeeded in having a resolution passed by the C. L. U. to the effect that if the Theatrical Protective Union did effect that if the Theatrical Protective Union did not compel the Fourteenth Street Theatre managers to employ members of the Manhattan Musical Union in the orchestra within a week, it should be expelled from the C. L. U.

The Theatrical Frotective Union did not succeed in doing what it was ordered to do, and was expelled or suspended. Several of the delegates at the C. L. U. meeting yesterday wanted to know which it was, expelled or suspended and as the corresponding secretary was not present nobody could tell. It was then that the trouble broke out, and the hottest kind of a debate followed. It nated until late in the evening, and after the delegates were thoroughly exhausted the whole matter was finally laid over for settlement at some future time.

Mr. Creevey says he has every reason to know that every ward in Brooklyn will send Low delegates to the convention if the wishes of the voters are expressed at the primaries and As-voters are expressed at the primaries and Assembly district conventions. It will be easy, he says to demonstrate the strength of President Low's hold upon the sympathy of Brooklyn voters, and he thinks this should be done in such a way that the Republicans will not dare to disregard the wishes of the people.

The followers of Jacob Worth in the Republican organization, it is asserted, are secretly pleased with the attitude taken by Messrs. Atterbury and Willis. They believe that the Low sentiment will help them to secure the support of many former allies of Messrs. Willis and Atterbury if those leaders persist in their threats of antagonism to President Low. Many Republicans who have no direct interest in the rivalry between the County Clerk and the Commissioner of City Works have said that they will certainly follow Mr. Worth this fail if he continues to be the leader of the Low forces through the desertion of the Worth men.

Simultaneously with the entrance into the town of this band, other groups of insurgents entered by different routes and joined forces at the Plaza de Armes. Several stores were plundered. After an engagement the garrison of the town succeeded in compelling the insurgents to retire.

It is reported that other insurgent forces tered the small town of Del Cobre, but no details of the attack have been received.

A large force of insurgents attacked and en-tered the village of Firmesa, in the mining zone, and plundered several stores. A detachment of Government troops has been sent from Santiago de Cuba to assist the garrison of the town. Full details of the engagement have not been received. Captain Jorge Newton, the American, who was recently captured by Government soldiers after having been wounded in an engagement near Baracoa, Pinar del Rio Province, is said to have be-longed to the band of Baldomero Acosta, which onsisted of 300 armed and 100 unarmed men. Generals Maroto and Molina and Colonel Aguilar are continuing their attacks upon the insurgent stronghold upon the heights of Loma Grillo, in Havana Province. The place is defended by the joint forces of the leaders Alejandro Rodrighuez and Eaul Arauge. The mountain heights extend from Madruga north to Pipian and west to Sayana Robles and La Catalina. The place is called Loma Grilla Soto, and is said to be inaccessible. To the top of the mountain there is only a path wide enough for a single file of soldiers, and it is impossible that artillery can be placed so as to command the mountain top. The Spanish troops are obliged to advance slowly, and are always exposed to the fire of the insurgents. Up to yesterday there had arrived at Madruga the bodies of twenty Spanish soldiers who had been killed and about seventy wounded. OBITUARY.

SAM CHESTER REID.

Sam Chester Reid, who died in Washington late Friday afternoon, had been for more than thirty years a familiar and somewhat notable figure in Washington. He had been in poor health for some months, and a few days ago his illness became so serious that it was necessary for him to take to his bed, and to obtain better care he was entered at Providence Hospital. His youngest son, S. Harney Reid, attended his father during his illness and was with him at the time of his death. In accordance with his will, there will be no funeral service, but the body will be cremated and the ashes distributed among the family. A widow and five children-Mrs. F. H. Parkhurst, of Bangor, Me.: Mrs. K. K. Kennedy, of this city; S. Chester Reid, of New-York; J. Rowan Reid and S. Harney Reid, both of Philadelphia-survive him.

Mr. Reid was born in this city on October He shipped before the mast at the Fr age of sixteen; in 1828 he was attached to the United States survey of the Ohio River, and in 1839 settled in Natchez, Miss., where he studied law under General John A. Quitman, and was appointed a United States Deputy Marshal. He was admitted to the har of Mississippi in 1841, to that of Louisiana in 1844, to the United States Supreme gers, being mentioned for "meritorious services and distinguished gallantry" at Monterey. Going from war to journalism in 1849 he was attached to the staff of "The New-Orleans Picayune." In 1851 he was a delegate to the National Railroad Convention in Memphis. Tenn., assembled to decide upon line to the Pacific.

In 1857 he declined the appointment of United States Minister to Rome. He reported the proceedof Fifty, says the neeting will be held in the ings of the Louisiana Secession Convention in 1851. and during the Civil War was the Confederate war correspondent of a large number of Southern newscorrespondent of a large number of Southern newspapers. At the close of the war he resumed his law practice, and in 1867 delivered an address on Interment at West Suffield, Conn. papers. At the close of the war he resumed his law practice, and in 1867 delivered an address on The Restoration of Southern Trade and Comnerce" in the principal cities of the South.

Mr. Reid established and incorporated in 1874 the Mississippi Valley and Brazil Steamship Company in St. Louis. He presented the battle sword of his distinguished father to the United States Senate

He was an industrious writer and was the author of a volume on the "United States Bankrupt Law of 1841" (Natchez, 1842), "The Scouting Expeditions of McCulloch's Texas Rangers" (Philadelphia, 1867). "The Battle of Chickamauga" (Mobile, 1863), "The During Raid of General John H. Morgan in Ohio, His Capture and Wonderful Escape with Captain T. Henry Hines" (Atlanta, 186). Mr. Reid reported and edited "The Case of the Private-Armed Brigof-War General Armstrong" and a brief on international law, with "Arguments of Charles O'Conor, Sam C. Reid and P. Phillips, before the United national law, with "Arguments of Charles O Conor.

Sam C. Reid and P. Phillips, before the United States Court of Claims at Washington, D. C., with the Decision of the Court" (New-York, 187). He also prepared "The Life and Times of Colonel Asron Burr" in vindication of Burr's character, but the manuscript was destroyed by fire in 1850.

But it was neither as soldier, author nor politician that Mr. Reid achieved his greatest prominence and became most widely known. Who has not heard and read of the desperate battle in the harbor of Fayai in 1814 between the American private-armed brig General Armstrong and a British squadron on its way to reinforce and support the British forces which had invaded Louisiana, and of the glorious results which followed the heroic efforts of Captain Reid and his galiant crew of the little American ship?

The British naval expedition to support the investment of New-Orleans, came to naught, the British assault on that place was repulsed and its leader shain, and the campaign abandoned before news of the treaty of Ghent had reached the United States. But Captain Reid lost his brig in the action at Fayai and an appeal was made to Congress to indemnify the owners, master and crew of the General Armstrong for their losses. For years the claim slumbered, and by and by all of the original claimants also slept their last sleep. But Captain Reid had left a son who possessed all the pagnacity and tenacity of purpose which had distinguished his father, and he took up the fight for the claim and pushed it for years, until, some ten years ago, an appropriation for its payment was made by Congress. Years before that it night for the claim and pushed it for years, until, some ten years ago, an appropriation for its payment was made by Congress. Years before that it had passed both branches of Congress and been approved, but on account of a defect in the title of the act the appropriation lapsed.

At the time of his death Mr. Reid was engaged in rewriting a history of the life of his father to replace the one which was destroyed by fire some time ago. This history will be completed by his sister, Mme. Di Cesnola, to whom the work was left in his will.

WILLIAM BAKER.

William Baker, at one time a well-known dry-goods merchant in Trenton, N. J., died at his home, No. 200 West One-hundred-and-mucteenth-st., on Saturday. He was sixty-eight years old and was born in Trenton. He served through the war in a New-Jersey regiment. For forty-two years he was New-Jersey regiment. For forty-two years he was a member of the drygoods firm of Baker & Brother, one of the first businesses of its kind in Trenton. He retired ten years ago. His death was the result of an accident that occurred three days before, when he fell downstairs, his injuries resulting in general paralysis. He leaves a willow and one son, Frank S. Baker. The funeral service will be held at the house to-morrow evening, and the burlal will be at Trenton. Mr. Baker was a member of Assier Lodge. F. and A. M. of that place, and the burlal will be conducted by the members of the lodge. lodge CARDINAL GIBBONS IN BROOKLYN.

Cardinal Gibbons arrived in Brooklyn on Saturday from Southampton, and went to the home of Major John D. Kelly, in Clermont ave, near Will-oughby-st. He has been staying in Southampton several weeks, resting. Yesterday the Cardinal and Major Kelly dined at St. Joseph's Seminary. Dun-woodte, with Archbishop Corrigan. The Cardinal re-fused himself to all callers last night. His plans are to leave Brooklyn to-day for Baltimore.
